

DARIAH Working Group Women Writers in History (WWIH)

A transnational research network studying a transnational writers' network

Gender and Historiography

Collective use and development of the NEWW VRE (New approaches to European Women's Writing), an on-line tool allowing large-scale research about women's authorship and their position in the literary field until the early 20th century: what role did GENDER play in literary communication?

Countries concerned

WG members (researchers) in:

Belgium
Canada
Finland
Germany
Hungary
Italy
Norway
Portugal
Serbia
Spain
UK

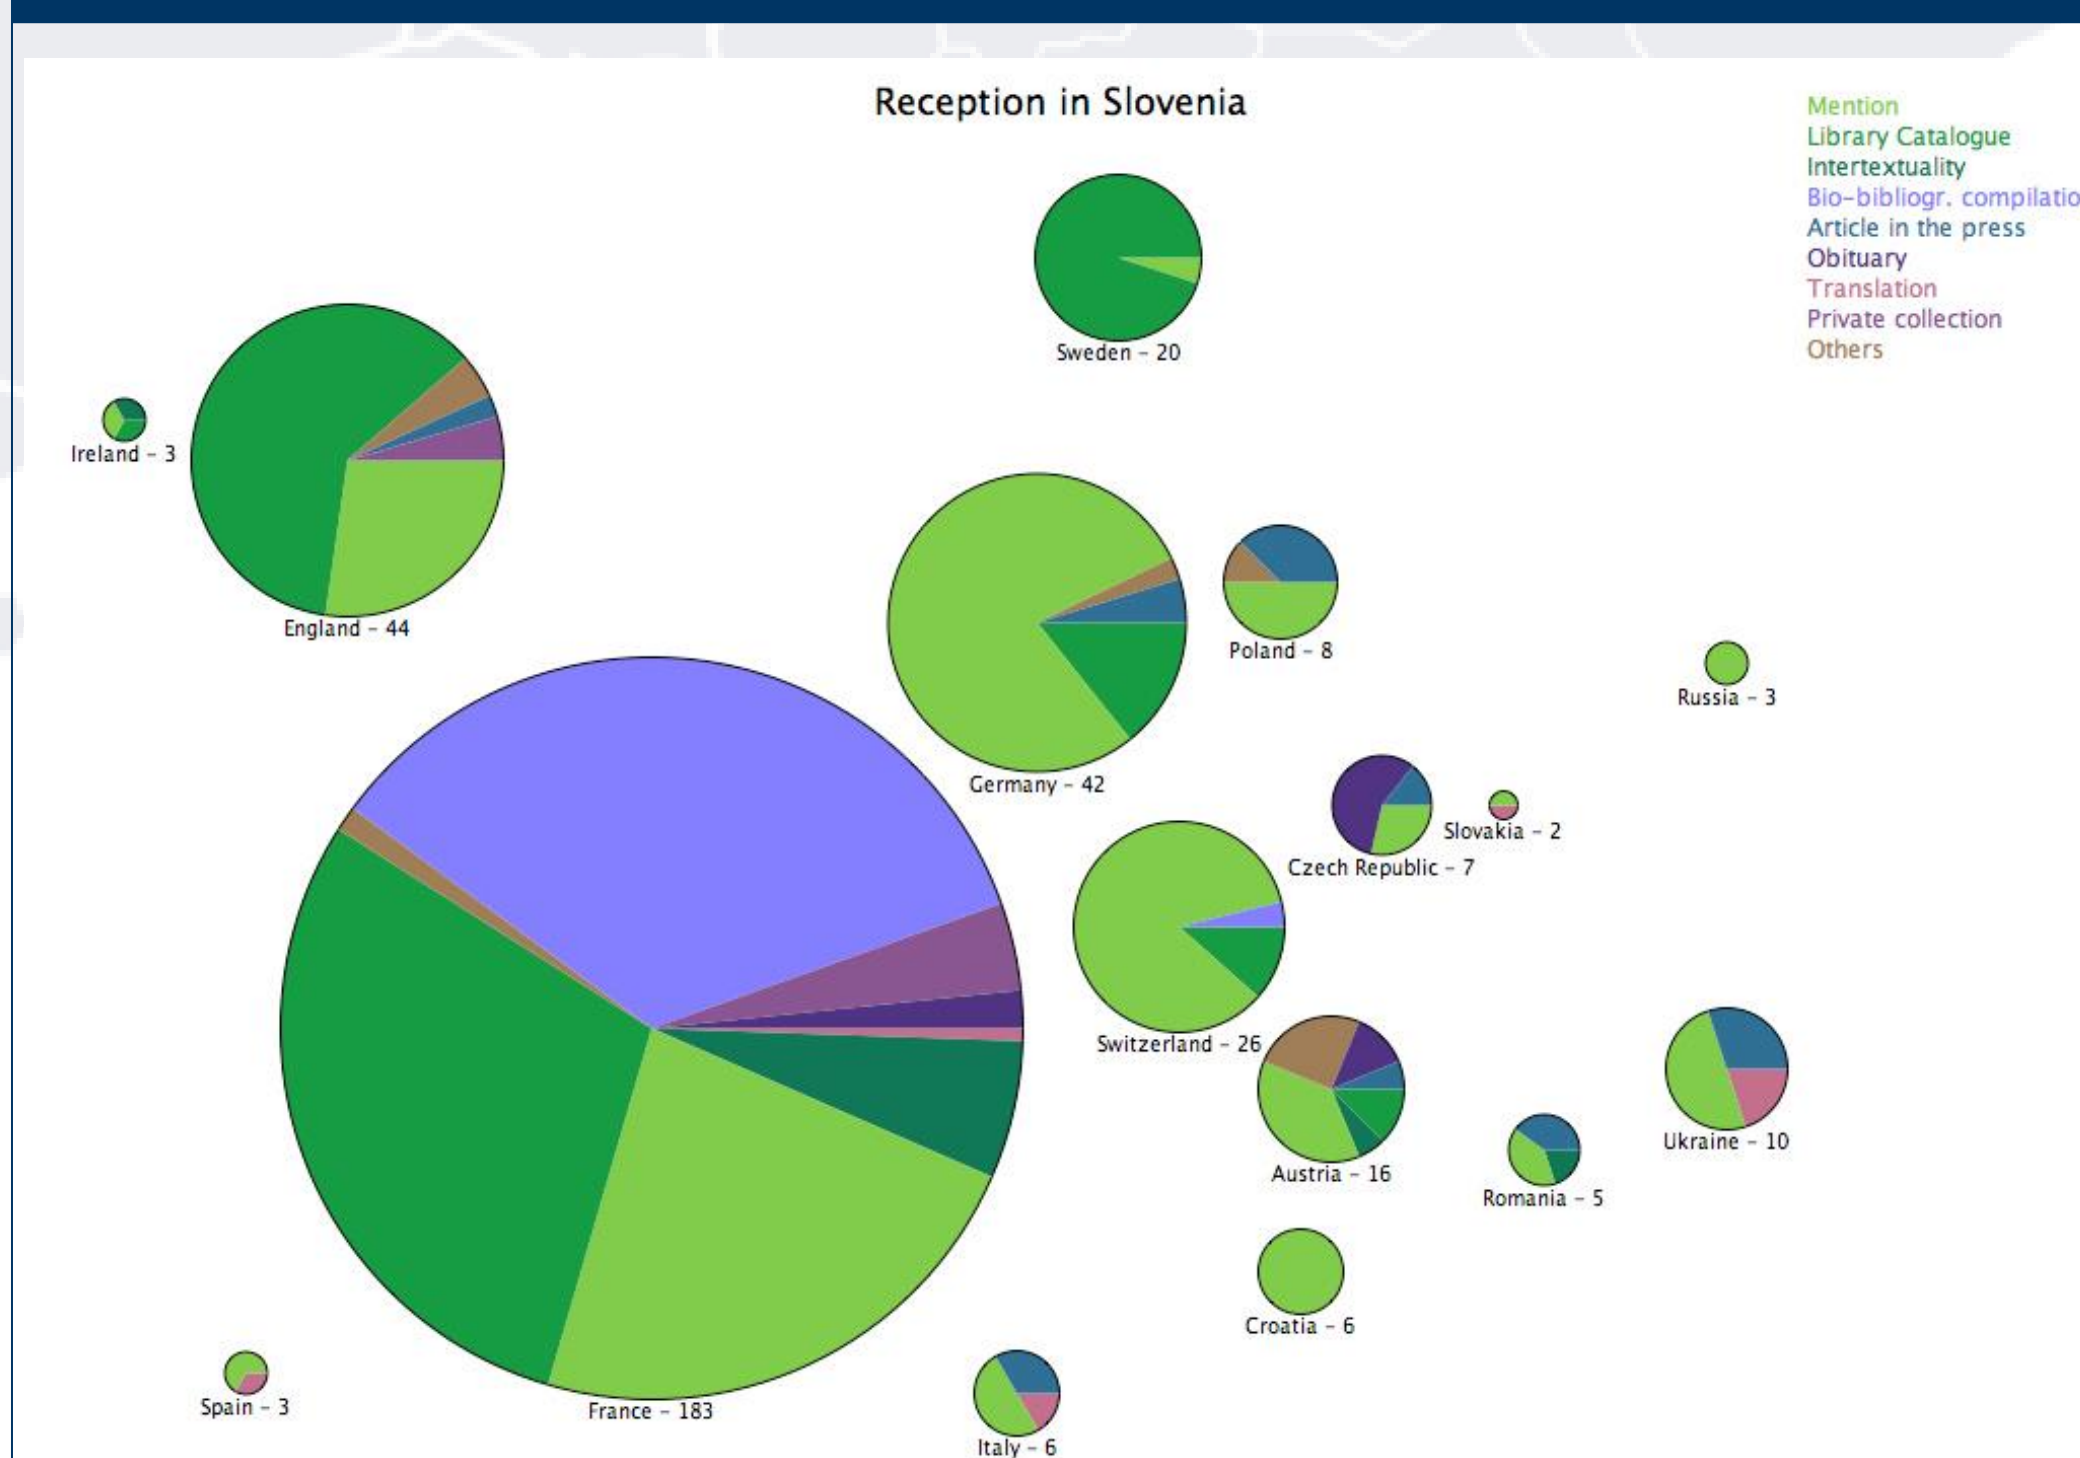

Bulgaria
Croatia
France
Greece
Ireland
Netherlands
Poland
Romania
Slovenia
Switzerland
USA

Poster authors:

Dr. Viola Čapková, University of Turku, Finland
Dr. Isabel Lousada, Universidade Nova de Lisboa, Portugal
Prof. Katja Mihurko-Poniž, University of Nova Gorica, Slovenia
Prof. Marie Nedregotten Sørbø, Volda University College, Norway
Prof. Amelia Sanz, Complutense University, Madrid, Spain
Dr. Suzan van Dijk, Huygens ING, Amsterdam, Netherlands

Example of visualizing : the reception of women's writing in Slovenia, according to reception types

Current DARIAH project (2017-18):
A new NEWW tool: trying, testing, teaching

What we have noted:

- Large-scale network analysis vs small-scale women oriented projects
- Students ready to participate in scholarly enterprises
- Citizen scientists ready to enter data
- NEWW VRE ready to
 - o select a corpus
 - o find connections
 - o use transnational approaches
 - o create links to on-line tools

What we need:

- Integrating the VRE in a Platform for teaching and research
- Engaging non-specialists:
 - o Training programs for secondary schools teachers
 - o Possible alternatives for the syllabus
 - o Training young researchers
- Enlarging audiences
 - o Collaborating with Wikipedia
 - o Collaborating with municipalities and national libraries
 - o Tracking women authors by geo-localisation, preparing guided tours.....

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International Licence

